

CHECKLIST OF REQUESTED INFORMATION

- Your current household income, including income from all sources, such as employment income, social security income, unemployment compensation, child support, alimony, rental income, or any other income. You will also be asked to provide information as to how your income has changed, if at all, during the past six months. Paycheck stubs would be very helpful in providing this information, but it is not essential that you have this information at your initial office consultation.
- Your current household monthly living expenses, such as how much you are required to spend each month on your mortgage or rent, utilities, food, clothing, gas and maintenance on your automobile(s), automobile insurance, and all other monthly recurring living expenses.
- A list of the names of, and amounts owed to, each of your creditors, including mortgage companies, car finance companies, student loan providers, credit card companies, loan companies, taxing authorities, and medical care providers.
- Your opinion as to the value of any and all real estate and personal property that you own, including, if applicable, your residence, automobiles, retirement accounts, bank accounts, and household goods.
- The year, make, model and current mileage for all automobiles that are titled in your name, either individually or jointly with another person, and the optional equipment on such automobiles (such as power windows, power door locks, power sunroof, aluminum alloy wheels, power seats, etc.). A copy of your registration card for each automobile would be very helpful in providing information as to the year, make, and model of the automobile, but it is not essential that you provide this documentation at your initial office consultation.
- The approximate amount of your debt to each creditor that was incurred during the past three months, six months, and twelve months (in other words, the approximate amount of credit that you have obtained on each credit account, either through charges, cash advances, or balance transfers, during the past three months, six months, and twelve months).

PLEASE NOTE: If you are unable to provide any of this information at your initial office consultation, then it will be very difficult for any bankruptcy attorney to provide you with specific information as to your bankruptcy options, and the office consultation will be of limited value to you. The more information that you can provide at your initial office consultation regarding your household income, your household living expenses, your debts, and the nature and value of your property (including real estate and personal property), the more specific we can be in explaining your bankruptcy options.
